

New AdventureMark General Manager

AdventureMark™ has reluctantly accepted Jamie Simpson's resignation as General Manager of AdventureMark. Jamie is leaving AdventureMark to focus on his investigation work with Kelvin TOP-SET. He'll depart at the end of October but will remain available for quite some time should clients need his assistance. Jamie will also work for us as an auditor and as a consultant for the adventure sector.

We're very fortunate and excited to announce that we have someone of the calibre of Stu Allan to step into the General Manager's role. Stu has been involved for many years in the adventure sector and is one of the most experienced outdoor safety auditors in the country. Stu has acted as a principal advisor to WorkSafe on setting up the adventure activities certification scheme, and will be on hand to guide clients through the audit process.

Those who've worked with Stu really enjoy his pragmatic approach to auditing. Jamie and Stu have been working together very closely over the past few years, and this will ensure a smooth transition for our clients.

We would like to take this opportunity to thank Jamie for all his hard work in not only managing AdventureMark over the last two and half years, but especially for the work he's done raising its profile and growing the business. AdventureMark now works with over 250 operations and feedback from our operators and the wider outdoors sector has been excellent.

From 15 October, the contact for AdventureMark will be stu@adventuremark.co.nz, phone 0800 394 436.
